

PEARSON, J.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
NORTHERN DISTRICT OF OHIO
EASTERN DIVISION

MELSON R. MATHIS,)
)	CASE NO. 4:20-CV-1228 Petitioner,)
v.)	JUDGE BENITA Y. PEARSON
)
MARK K. WILLIAMS,)
)	MEMORANDUM OF OPINION AND
Respondent.)	ORDER

Pro se Petitioner Melson R. Mathis, a federal inmate incarcerated at FCI Elkton (“Elkton”), has filed an Emergency Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus (ECF No. 1), along with two Supplements (ECF Nos. 2 and 3) (collectively, the “Petition”) under 28 U.S.C. § 2241. See ECF No. 1. Petitioner seeks immediate release to home confinement on the basis that Respondent is failing to provide him adequate protection from COVID-19 in violation of his rights under the Eighth Amendment.

Promptly after the filing of a habeas corpus petition, a federal district court must undertake a preliminary review of the petition to determine “[i]f it plainly appears from the petition and any attached exhibits that the petitioner is not entitled to relief” in the district court. Rule 4 of the Rules Governing Habeas Corpus Cases Under Section 2254 (applicable to petitions under § 2241 pursuant to Rule 1(b)). If so, the petition must be summarily dismissed. See Allen v. Perini, 424 F.2d 134, 141 (6th Cir. 1970) (the district court has a duty to “screen out” habeas corpus petitions that lack of merit on their face). No response is necessary when a petition is frivolous, obviously lacks merit, or where the necessary facts can be determined from the petition itself without consideration of a response. Id.

Upon review, the Court finds that the instant Petition must be dismissed.

Prison conditions are subject to constitutional scrutiny under the Eighth Amendment, but in order to make out a claim, a prisoner must demonstrate both objective and subjective components. Wilson v. Williams, 961 F.3d 829, 839 (6th Cir. 2020). He must show that he was subjected to an objectively serious prison condition as to which a defendant prison official acted with subjective “deliberate indifference.” Farmer v. Brennan, 511 U.S. 825, 834 (1994). The subjective component of a claim requires a prisoner to show that a prison official “knows that inmates face a substantial risk of serious harm and disregards that risk by failing to take reasonable measures to abate it.” Farmer, 511 U.S. at 847. An official may not be held liable if he responded reasonably to a known risk, even if the harm ultimately was not averted. Id. at 826.

In Wilson, the Sixth Circuit examined the conditions at Elkton in the context of a § 2241 action and concluded that a class of medically-vulnerable inmates was not likely to succeed on the merits of an Eighth Amendment claim based on COVID-19 circumstances. 961 F.3d at 844. The Sixth Circuit held that the Bureau of Prisons (“BOP”) “responded reasonably to the known, serious risks posed by COVID-19 to petitioners at Elkton,” and, therefore, the inmates could not demonstrate the required deliberate indifference to meet the subjective element of their claim. Id. at 840. The Court found that the BOP’s “failure to make robust use of transfer, home confinement, or furlough”—as Petitioner seeks here—for prisoners at Elkton, including medically vulnerable inmates, did not constitute deliberate indifference within the meaning of the

(4:20-CV-1228)

Eighth Amendment “in light of the BOP’s other measures to prevent the spread of COVID-19, and given the limitations on the BOP’s authority to release inmates.” Id. at 844. The Court also found that the district court abused its discretion in granting a preliminary injunction without addressing the BOP’s “legitimate concerns about public safety” regarding whether inmates could care for themselves upon release, and whether they presented a substantial risk to the general public without assurance they could do so. Id. at 845.

In light of the Sixth Circuit’s decision in Wilson, this Petition, which asserts the same claim on similar allegations, lacks merit on its face. Because the Sixth Circuit has already considered an essential part of Petitioner’s claim in a case against the same Respondent named here—based on the same facts alleged in this Petition—and published an opinion holding that Respondent would likely prevail, the instant Petition does not allege a colorable claim of deliberate indifference under the Eighth Amendment.

Conclusion

Accordingly, the Petition is dismissed pursuant to Rule 4 of the Rules Governing Habeas Corpus Cases. This dismissal is without prejudice to re-filing in the event of a final judgment in Wilson, or other binding authority in this Circuit, suggests a colorable claim.

IT IS SO ORDERED.
